Jesus Conversing with His Disciples

Luke 12

Invovlement

Garry Evans

How patience grows...

1. Look to God's patience with you. Remember mercy received (1 Timothy 1:16). Gratitude softens impatience.
2. Pray specifically for endurance and long-suffering with joy (Colossians 1:11).
3. Train your responses. Pause before speaking (James 1:19). Choose gentle words (Proverbs 15:1).
4. Practice small obedience's. Keep simple commitments—daily prayer, regular study, weekly assembly. Habits build stamina.
5. Meditate on Scripture. Passages like James 5:7–11; Psalm 37; Isaiah 40:28–31; Romans 12:12 feed endurance.
6. Serve someone difficult. Patience grows by being stretched in love (Philippians 2:3–4).
7. Remember the finish line. Keep Christ's return and the resurrection in view (Hebrews 12:1–3; 1 Corinthians 15:58).

Common barrier...

- Constant urgency erodes patience. Set limits on the hurry of your life. Are you always stressed? Are you always in a hurry? This lifestyle is the enemy of patience.

The beginning of this chapter coincides with the end of the previous one, so, when put with the ending of eleven, chapter twelve explains why a great crowd has gathered. The scribes and Pharisees were “very hostile toward him” (Luke 11:53). The gathering crowd was trampling one another (12:1). Before a crowd, Jesus addressed only his disciples. Yeast makes a loaf look more substantial but less nourishing, and quickly grows stale. The Pharisees' teachings and appearance were substantial but hollow, marred by hypocrisy. Outward appearances do not always equal inward realities.

In a more intimate manner, Jesus warns that they need to fear God more than political retribution. This is the only time Luke uses the term translated as “hell.” As long as they continue to confess Jesus as Lord before the judgment of men, so will he confess them before the angels in heaven. Jesus will advocate for God’s children (cf. 1 John 2:1).

Next is a portion where Jesus speaks about blasphemy against the Holy Spirit. When we consider that they attributed to Beelzebul what the Holy Spirit was doing by healing a mute man (Luke 11:14–22), this gives context to what Jesus had in mind. Now, we have to consider that “blasphemes” isn’t a one-time thing that is unforgivable. In Greek, the verb is in the aorist, active tense, which would be better understood by rephrasing it like this: “Whoever continually blasphemes against the Holy Spirit.”

A dire warning is given that the disciples would incur political retribution. Yet, in those moments, Jesus promised that the Holy Spirit would guide their words (12:11–12). Later, when they are on trial, we observe them speaking with such wisdom that all who hear seem somewhat amazed by their defense (Acts 4:5–7; 5:27–32; 6:9–15).

When someone cries out, requesting Jesus’ arbitration, he emphasizes greed over justice. The following parable places the rich at odds with God, and it may alleviate the poor disciples’ concern that wealthy religious leaders would use their wealth and influence to oppress them. The farmer has outgrown his current infrastructure, and any prudent farmer would build more or bigger barns. Some would also store their crops and wait for the market to pay higher prices. What is denounced is that this farmer has the wrong attitude and fails to act responsibly toward others—he does not love his neighbor as himself. Since he is so blessed, he is obligated to steward his material treasures for the good of others.

James A. Harding # 2

As a result of the 1909 courthouse lawn tent meeting led by James A. Harding (1848-1922), thirteen individuals decided to become the nucleus of the Water Street Church. Unfortunately, the list of 13 names has not survived.

Some will remember that both the Harding family and the Potter family were well-to-do and very prominent in Bowling Green at that time period.

In his career, Harding preached in over 300 "protracted" meetings and it is said that between 1876 and 1893, he preached somewhere 2 times every day in addition to 3 times on Sundays. He became president of Potter Bible College in 1901 and was instrumental, along with David Lipscomb, in the establishment of the Nashville Bible School (now Lipscomb University). Perhaps the most prominent and lasting legacy that most folks would recognize today is the naming of what is now Harding University in Searcy, Arkansas.

Harding even debated a man named John H. Nichols in Murray in March of 1890. For the benefit of modern Americans, a "protracted" meeting was simply a gospel meeting that often lasted for 2 or 3 weeks.
