Our circumstances in life are changing constantly. We have a tendency to long for things to be different than they are. However, a change in setting will only change the circumstance, not the person. A beetle once said to an eagle. "How great it must be to be on the top of the mountain, such a splended view, and how clear the sky must be!" "Yes," said the eagle, "and up here, you would see how hard the wind can blow."

People can make themselves miserable and worry themselves sick about their current situation. Sometimes a situation cannot be changed. But a person caught in a thunderstorm can look forward to the rainbow.

A little boy with tears in his eyes went to his mother with a broken arrow and asked her to fix it. "I'll try to fix it" she said, "but I am afraid that I can't do it." He watched her for a few minutes and said, "nevermind mother; if you can't fix it, I'll be just as happy without it."

Could we be just as happy without something we wish we have, but do not?

Priestly Services

From the very beginning, God intended for humanity to serve as priests. When the man is placed in the garden of Eden, God tells him to "tend and keep it" (Gen. 2:15). We likely think of landscaping and horticultural work when we read that, but the English translation of the Hebrew terms doesn't reflect their technicality. These two words, "tend" and "keep," are technical terms used in the work of the tabernacle in Numbers 3:7–10. Shomra is the word given as "keep" in Genesis 2:15, and in the passage from Numbers, it's translated as "attend" three times (vv. 7, 8, 10). Obdah is "tend" in Genesis 2:15 and is translated as "do the work" in Numbers 3:7–8. Therefore, the work of a priest was maintaining sacred space—keeping it from becoming polluted. Adam and Eve failed at that, so they were exiled from Eden. Yet, the priesthood of God's people hasn't passed away as much as we might think.

The Book of Hebrews views the assembly and worship in priestly terms. The priestly organization hasn't been abolished but follows a new forefather. Rather than our priesthood being Aaronic, it is after the order of Melchizedek (Heb. 7:20–28). We, collectively Christians, are a royal priesthood (1 Peter 2:9; Rev. 1:6; 5:10). Our High Priest is Christ our Lord who serves in the actual tabernacle of heaven—unlike the Aaronic priesthood that served the copy and shadow of the real on earth (cf. Heb. 9:1–10)—as our liturgist (Heb. 8:1–6).

When we assemble as God's priests to worship, we come literally to heaven itself, the Mount Zion of the city of God, along with angels and those who've gone before us (Heb. 12:22–24). We can look to heaven to determine our worship, and the most specific passage about heavenly worship is given in Revelation 4–5, where praises and prayers are offered, where the scroll of the Word of God is present, opened, and the Words of God are given. We also see the Lord's altar a little later, under which are the souls of the slain martyrs (Rev. 6:9–11)—a different form from which we observe the sacrificial meal that's the Lord's Supper (cf. Heb. 13:10).

LIBRARY E. Bailey OREGON TRAIL

Folks back here in the Bible Belt don't usually think of Oregon as having much to do with the Restoration Movement. In reality, Oregon was one of the success stories of the movement in the mid 19th century.

Dr. Jerry Rushford, retired professor at Pepperdine, wrote the definitive history of the movement as it moved westward. His 550-page book, issued in 1997, is a prodigious piece of research into the vast numbers of Christians who left Kentucky, Tennessee and other points east to follow the Oregon Trail.

Christians on The Oregon Trail focuses primarily on the period of 1842-1882 when folks were pouring into the territory & state and establishing churches. Oregon was granted statehood in 1859 and, for some years thereafter, the Restoration Movement was the largest religious group in the state. (more next week)

YOUTH Jacob Vaughan

Summer has officially arrived. That means quite a few of you will be traveling and even more of you will be making memories with your families and friends as things get to slow down for just a little while, at least school wise that is. I want to wish all of you safe journeys on your trips and encourage you to spread Jesus to all that you meet in your travels.

Starting June 1st, we will be promoting all our youths to the next level regarding bible classes. This is a bittersweet moment for all of us that have the privilege of teaching our young ones. Personally, I would very much like to keep my graduating seniors in my class, but I know by doing so I would be robbing them of even greater opportunities to grow. The only real consolation is knowing that I will be gaining new students through the promotion of the 5th and 8th grade classes. For those moving classes, this time can be a little scary and make you a tad hesitant, but it can also be a time of excitement and adventure. It really all depends on your outlook. Let us all take these next steps together and look towards a future that holds ample opportunities with eagerness and enthusiasm.

FBS will take place here at Glendale starting on May 22nd and running through May 25th from 6-8 each evening. The theme for the year is Two Faced. It's not too late to register for this event. Please look at our website online and on the home page you will see the link for FBS registration.
